lst. It is furnished complete and ready for attaching It vantages over all others:

Ist. It's furnished complete and ready for attaching the horse without building platforms or setting posts. 2d It is made to adjust itself to any hard substance by the use of weights attached to eccentric levers, which obviates all danger of breaking, which has always been the trouble with all stationary roller Mills. 3d. Any required amount of pressure may be obtained by moving the weights nearer the end of the levers. 4th. The rollers are turned perfectly true and covered with a coating of tin, which keeps them always bright and clear of rust which gathers on the iron rollers. 5th. The journals are of wrought iron, running in cast boxes, lined with Babbit Mettle. We are building two sizes, as follows:

No. 1. The reliers are 20 inches long, and will crush ten stakes at once, or 800 gallons per day. Weight, 1,000 pounds. Price, $150. No. 2. The rollers are 12 inch song, and will crush five stakes at once, or 300 gallons perday. Weight, 500 pounds. Price $80.

"You can think what you please about it, gentlemen," said the landlord, "but I can tell you my opinion upon the subject; I wouldn't give much for the mother who would let two little things like them go wandering about the streets, alone, at this time of night."

One of those who had expressed interest in the children, felt angry at this remark, and retorted with some bitterness:

"And I would give less for the man who would make their father drunk."

"Ditto to that," responded one of the company.

"And here is my hand for that," said another. The landlord finding that the majority of the company were likely to be against him, smothered his angry feelings and kept silence. A few minutes afterwards, two or three of the inmates of the bar-room went away. ELEFONTAINE EAIL 20 AD LIVE.

It was a strange place for two little girls to enter, and at such an hour, but after standing a moment, they pushed against the green door, which turned lightly upon its hinges, and stepped into a large and brilliantly lighted bar-room.

"Bless us!" exclaimed a man who sat reading. "Here are those babies again."

ady and Jane stood near the door and looked all round the room. But they did not see the object of their search, and going up to the bar, they said timidly to a man who stood behind it pouring liquor into glasses:

"Has papa been here to-night?"
The man leaned over the bar until hisface was

Ady and Jane felt frightened as well by the harsh manner as the angry words of the man, and they started back from him, and were turn-ing toward the door with sad faces, when the perloud enough for them to hear him: "Come here, my little girls."

The children stopped and looked at him, when e beckoned them to approach, and they did so.

"My dear sir," pursued the stra ger, "you have fallen at the hand of the monster, intemperance, and I feel that you are in great peril.

You have not, however, fallen hopelessly. You may yet rise if you will. Let me, then, in the name of the sweet babes who have shown, in so wonderful a manner, their love to you, conjure you to arise superior to this deadly foe. Reward those dear children with the highest blessing their hearts can desire. Come with me and sign the pledge of freedom. Let us, though strangers to each other, unite in this one good act.

"Come, Ady and Jane, it's time you was in bed," said Mrs. Freeman to her two little girls about nine o'clock one evening. Ady was nine years old, and Jane was a year and a half younger. The two children had been sitting at the work table with their mother, one of them studying her lesson, and the other engaged on a piece of fenew needle work.

Death at a Ball. The poor fellow who was burnt in the Passage de l'Opera, at one of the Paris masked balls, a Railroad Record mention of which we made some time since, wa a commission merchant's clerk in the Rue Lathey hastened along. After going a distance of several blocks, they stopped before a house, over the door of which was a handsome ornamental gas lamp, bearing the words, "Oysters and refreshoods over, off he went gaily as a truant, to the cosover, off he went gaily as a truant, to the costumer's in the Passage de l'Opera, close to the theater, and attired himself in a rich costume nothing else would suit him than the attire of a marquis of Louis XIV's court, stiff with gold lined with satin, and all velvet, silk velvet, an' please sir. Then he filled hispipe and began to puff away for very pleasure, at finding him, the mill back of home, the machine that added up in folios of "the firm," tricked out in such fine clothes—when, all of a sudden his happiness was interrupted by flames—his pipe had set his flaxen wig on fire; he trid to get it off. It was in vain. He fainted in fright. No man can tell whether he is rich or poor turning to his ledger. It is the heart that makes the man rich. He is rich or poor, according to what he has a term can be made applicable. While the policy of legislation should be to disconnect the banks from the State, the visionary financial schemes in the last Legislature were busy in concocting a plan by which bank notes should become a lawful tender in all the money transactions of the State. If any principle in banking is well established it is that the ratio of bank issues to the coin basis should approximate to equality. The Legislature, by its action, thought differently. It wanted fiction, bank our monetary affairs. We refer to the subthought differently. It wanted fiction, bank notes as the basis of the financial operations of the State, instead of the reality, coin. If the embezzlement bill had become a law, it would have operated as an act to loan the treasury of the state of the contract the state of the reality coin. If the embezzlement bill had become a law, it would have operated as an act to loan the treasury of the state of th embezzlement bill had become a law, it would have operated as an act to loan the treasury of eight pounds for each individual.

She should not encourage or increase the facilities for indebtedness. She should not directly or indirectly be identified with matters which legitimately belong to private enterprise. And to show the extent which the present bank- with the former, it ought to be entirely neglected ing and credit systems injuriously affect the but otherwise there cannot be a greater satisfaccountry, which it should rather be the object of bations which it gives itself, seconded by the legislation to restrain than encourage, we quote what Mr. Evererr says upon the subject, and his long observation and large experience in public battons which it gives itself, seconded by the applauses of the public. A man is more sure of his conduct when the verdict which he passes upon his own behavior is thus warranted and confirmed by the opinion of all that know him. ment. He says:

I reserve for the last place the bank debt, which is of a somewhat peculiar nature, and which exercises, by its fluctuations, a controlling, sometimes disastrous, influence on all the other debt—that is, all the other business—of the country. The remark already made, with reference to the ratio of the capital and business of individuals, applies with equal force to the capital and business of the banks. They are, at all times, largely in debt. Their circulation is all debt; it is avowedly a promise to pay on demand. The deposits are so much debt, which the banks are equally promenading with anybody but himself.—Phila debt. Their circulation is all debt; it is avowedly a promise to pay on demand. The deposits are so much debt, which the banks are equally bound to pay on demand; and these two kinds of debt are the basis of a large part of their busi-ness operations. existed elsewhere, and, except when hoarded were, in some way or other, employed. The banks can do nothing but connect them into masses, available for business. This is an important public benefit, but it is not a creation of capital. The circulating paper which the banks issue, can add nothing to the capital of the counissue, can add nothing to the capital of the country, for it is nothing but the evidence of debt.

This picture is but the reflection of experience And after the State, by constitutional inhibition, had divorced herself from a credit system, the of a policy of life insurance expiring on Sunday, evils of which are so vividly and justly portrayed by Mr. Evenerr, the attempt was made by the wise figure of the last Lagislature to make wise financiers of the last Legislature to make filling any contract, the day for doing which such a "delusion" the basis for the management comes upon Sunday. The general notion is that of our public finances-a system which is sus. in all such cases the contract must be performed ceptible of creating or increasing a monetary reday. Ma. Enron.—A few parting remarks are due to my friend, the Rev. A. Beasonies.

He says that Matthew's Gospel was written in Hebrew or Syriac originally, and yet he says that I will render an invaluable service if I will discover that original. This is relying upon "tradition" with a vengeance—asserting a Hebrew or Syriac original, of which there are no authentic or reliable traces! So of Mark's Gospel. As a rational man, I reject all such matters as unworthy of grave consideration, much less discussion.

My articles are all before me, and I simply never said in any of them "that Christ and his twelve Apostles alone, set by him on twelve thrones on the day of Pentecost, have a right to teach, and left no successors." He had better reply to what I did say, than manufacture new

To the Judges of the Supreme Court is confided, by the Constitution, the power to declare authoritatively what is the law of the civil Government ernment; and that is the reason why what the adjudge is binding, and not because their determinations are intallibly right; and the truth is they are fallible and commit errors, and when they do, the lawyer or "pettifogger" against whom they decide is right. So that I, though not so wise, am just as infallible as the Supreme Judges are. But Christ, the King in the Christian kingdom, has not confided to any Pope, council, convocation or other body, the power to declare authoritatively for others what is his law, nor has he given any of them the infallibility of inspiration; hence, though they may be wiser than I, they are no more infallible than I am.

Through the criminal avarice of Manufacturers and dealthan I, they are no more infallible than I am. Christ has made his law so plain that the way-faring man though a fool need not err therein, and holds each accuntable for himself—he (Christ) being the only vicar between God and each individual of the human family. Matthew, chapter 16, v. 18, proves anything else but that Christ constituted the Pope or any one else the authoritative expounder of his law. It simply proves that Christ game Simon a new name, towit, Peter, which, if the Savior had spoken it in English, would have been Rock; and he informs him, Peter, that upon the truth just stated by him, to wit: that Jesus was the Christ, the Son of the Guilly of this secret attack upon every man's life, supply--WE COULDN'T THINK OF SUCH A THING.—An Indiana poetess, "Babie Bell" by name, published in the Jasper Courier a poem called "Hold Her Down." MUNSONS Copper Tubular

LIGHTNING ROD.

SPIRAL FLANGES, (PATENTED AUG. 5, 1856.)

Single Rods, complete for attaching to buildings, sent by express to any part of the country. We offer unusual inducements to persons who are engaged in putting up Rods or who may desire to engage in this business. County and State Rights for sale.

This Rod is in general use in Central Indiana, and many other localities throughout the country. It always succeeds wherever it is introduced. It is no humbug. No man who examines its merits will ever buy any other Rod. The old iron rods give way before it as ignorance flies before the advance of light.—According to Prof. Faraday, and other men of note, copper has a conducting power 5 to 8 times greater than iron; and, in addition to this important fact, Munson's Rod has a surface inside and out, nearly three times as great as the old iron rod. Munson's Rod is an ornament on the best buildings, and does not rust, but will endure an age with aut losing its conducting power.

This Rod has received the First Premiums at the American Institute of New York; the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia; the National Fair at Lenisville, Ky; the State Fairs of Ohio, Iowa, Indiana, Connecticut, and wherever exhibited. It was never beaten in any contest and never will be where there are truly Single Rods, complete for attaching to buildings, sent

> The success which attends the use of Dr . Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters evinces at once its virtues in all cases of debility and diseases of the stomach. Certificates, almost without number, have been published, attesting its almost miraculous power in removing those painful and fearful diseases. And at this time it seems idle to do more than call attention to the great remedy of the age, in order to awaken public attention to its excellence. It is the only preparation of the kind that is reliable in all ases, and it is therefore worthy of the consideration of the afflicted. The Bitters are pleasant t the taste, agreeable in their enects, and valuable as a tonic or remedy for indigestion.

Trial of Daniel E. Sickles. The pressure for admittance into the courtroom is by no means so great as on previous days. The general impression seemed to be that the trial would be concluded to-day, but it is now the trial would be concluded to-day, but it is now evident that the argument on instructions will be so spun out as to prevent that before Monday. Mr. Carlisle notified the Judge that Mr. Brodhead was in court, and satisfactorily explained the cause of his not having been here before.

Richard Brodhead testified—Am acquainted with Sickles; saw him on the day of the homicide; I was walking out and met my friend Mr. Haldeman, of Harrisburg, and we called on Judge Black; when Sickles came in, I introduced him to Mr. Haldeman; a few words passed between Sickles and Haldeman on the subject of Pennsylvania politics; I called Sickles' attention to some mud on his boots, and he left the room to take it off; he returned soon; I heard footsteps on the stairs; he immediately rose and stepped out as ff to meet the person; he was out some time; in a minute or two Judge Black came in very much excited; after sometime Sickles returned; Haldeman and myself stepped up to him, Haldeman acting as spokesman; seeing that he was there without friends, Haldeman tendered our services to go with him to a magistrate; he thanked us. I asked, "was it a bailable offense?" He said he did not know, but if all the facts were known it would be He then added, "For God knows I would be justified," or "I could not help it."

The argument on instructions was then commenced by Mr. Carlisle, for the prosecution, and was followed by Mr. Stanton, for the defense, occupying the entire day.

Senator Douglas occupied a seat at the law-yers' table, and appeared much interested in Mr. Stanton's eloquent argument for the defense.

Mr. Brady will continue the argument on Mon-day, on the same side, and Mr. Ould will close for the prosecution.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 25. The court room was crowded this morning.
Mr. Brady argued in an eloquent and able manner on the instructions of the defence, mainly on the question of insanity. Mr. Brady endeavored to show that the Derringer pistol was fired by Mr. Key. There is no mortal witness to gainsay

When Mr. Brady came to the eleventh of the instructions, which is as follows:

"If the jury have any doubts as to the case, either in reference to the homicide or the question of sanity, Mr. Sickles should be acquitted."

The judge interrupted him, saying that the Court had already decided so in one case. The reports of the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane show that the most exciting cause of insanity are domertic troubles. He trusted that Mr. Sickles, so far from being punished and degraded by his appearance on trial, would give dignity to have returned to New York and been received again among his former associates.

Mr. Ould followed Mr. Brady. He denied that the prosecution were defending adultery in the course of this case. He condemned that as much as any other crime, but this crime tried here is murder. The iniquity of the one crime could not detract from the enormity of the other, nor could it relieve it of the horror which everywhere attaches to the taking of another's life. He proceeded to review the ancient laws relating to adultery. The laws of Solon and the laws of the Gothic nations made the same distinctions as the common law between an adulterer caught and killed afterwards. But we are not governed by the laws of Solon, nor the Roman, nor the by the laws of Solon, nor the Roman, nor the Gothic laws, but by the common law.

Mr. Ould continued for some time, and before he had concluded, the Court adjourned.

ment. It really costs nothing, for it will pay for itself in the increased comfort supplied to his stock, and the diminished quantity of food necessary to carry them through the winter. As for the labor and expense of hauling out, that is not very formidable when you post up and look the thing right in the face.

In the instance to which we have referred, after the field was checked off for the seed, a two-horse wagon and three men manured four acres horse wagon and three men manured four acres per day—giving to each hill a large shovel full of the compost. The actual expense of this case was probably two dollars per day, but in any case would not be over four dollars, or one dollar per acre. Without the manure, the old field might possibly have yielded 25 bushels to the acre; with it, it yielded about 49 bushels. Difference—15 bushels which with the probable and 23 large acre bashel is $6. bushels, which at only 33 3c. per bushel, is $5.

All this is clear gain, for the cost of hauling out and applying the manure is fully repaid by the condition in which the crop left the ground for grass .- Louisville Courier.

GOOD STOCK VS. POOR STOCK .- The difference between good stock and poor is so apparent, we would suppose farmers would all try to get the best; but is that the case? I think not. Some of the more intelligent, (such as those that read the Ohio Farmer for instance,) have found out that they can raise a steer worth $25, when it is two years old, with less expense than they can raise one that is not worth more than that when he is four years old; they have also learned that by patronizing the best blooded horses, they can raise colts worth from $150 to $200 as easily as they can raise one worth $75. With this difference in view, it is astonishing that farmers will drive their cows to a poor bull, whose carcass might be salted in his horns, merely to save a dollar or two, which they would be obliged to spend in securing the services of a good one.—
The same with horses. Some may think this an Safe and reliable Medicine exaggerated statement; I know by experience that it is not. I was offered ten dollars apiece for my calves, last fall, while my neighbors could not sell theirs for over five, raised in the same way. But what is the use in writing? Those that read the Farmer know these things already, and the only way to enlighten the rest, is to persuade them to take the paper.

A Lover of Good Stock.

Mr. GILEAD, Morrow Co., O .- Ohio Farmer. GARDENS .- It is a good thing to have a garde morning of summer and early autumn, and the investment of a few sixpences or shillings thus der various pretentious names. will secure a good return; especially if there be ladies in any way about the house; for to the credit of women be it said, that with ninety-nine feminines out of a hundred, roses, pinks, and especially camelias are held at their full value.

If gifted with a garden of any size, from a yard square upward, you have ample means for keeping up a full supply of bouquets. If not, you can probably find room for a box of earth. If this be wanting, buy a sea shell—one which will hold two ounces of soil will do—and drilling holes in it, hang it with cord and tassels. One which holds only two ounces will maintain a beautiful flowering vine, which, as it grows and twines and blossoms over the braided cords, will prove a most beautiful ornament in the parlor. A late number of an agricultural paper gave a long list of flowers which would grow in such large and small shells in parlors, and we presume that at any seed store, those desiring can obtain proper information and seeds.

A very pretty arrangement is that of ferns under glass. They are a self-supporting institution, watering themselves, growing their own carbonic acid, and form a most beautiful ornament for the parlor. Ivy will also grow in the house, and twine even on pillars, or any fanciful supports which may be extended to it. We have seen a design for a narrow, square and tall gothic tower, with the receptacle for earth inside; the ivy growing out through a lower window, which was very graceful. With a little ingenuity one can be readily constructed, and used in the garden dur-ling the summer for any kind of climbing vines.

This is just the season for most of such fancy flower planting, and we accordingly advise our readers to have their gardens dug over, and then wend their way to some florist, and obtain seeds, roots or other materials for cultivating the fine arts a la nature. Those who test the good, beautiful and true by what may or may not be eaten, may stick up a few short poles and grow Lima beans, a very few vines of which will keep a family supplied with an excellent vegetable, until the severe frosts—and later if they will first pick and dry the beans.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

ROTATION AND DEEP SOIL—A CORN EXPERIMENT.—Regular rotation of crops and deep plowing are working wonders upon some of the old and long worn-out farms of New Esgland. In the discussions before the Maine State Board of Agriculture, which met at the seat of government in January, many of the delegates bore striking and uniform testimony to the value of both these practices, especially upon lands that had been cropped hard. One of the members mentioned a field of fifteen acres, "badly bound out," which was plowed three inches deeper than ever before, and after an application of three boashes of plaster of Paris, produced a yield of 600 bushels of plaster of Paris, produced a yield of 600 bushels of plaster of Paris, produced a yield of 600 bushels of plaster of Paris, produced a yield of 600 bushels of plaster were substituted by a generous quantity of barn-yard manure, or a compost of which the base should be stable dung and scrapings from the woods.

We have our mind's eye new upon an old field twelve miles from Louisville, which was treated in this manner three years ago, and gave a yield of corn in return which more than paid expenses. Without further preparation it was seeded to grass sown upon the corn stabble, and will, this coming season, be more than fair pasturage or meadow. For one of which it is designed. The corn in this experiment was manured in the hill.

Our farmers complain of the great labor and heavy cost of such experiments. But such complaints are without reason. Every farmer who keeps merely two or three horses, four or five will only litter his stalls, pens and barn yard, with the cheap litter afforded by the woods a short distance from his dwelling-house, in quantities enough to furnish his animals with comfortable bedding, he can have every year, by planting-time in the spring, a mountain of compost such as we have described, that will perfectly astonish his own eyes.

So much for the cost of that part of the experiment. It really costs nothing, for it will pay for itself in the increased comfort supplied to his increased to find, and have found, and a compact to supplie to be a composite of the stable of a composite of the stable of the conjointly with medicines.

YOUNG MEN TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

Dr. Amos & Son take pleasure in announcing that they have invented a most important instrument for the cure of the above diseases. It has been subjected to a test by the most eminent physicians in London, Paris, Philadelphis and New York; it has been declared the only useful instrument ever invented for the cure of seminal weakness, or any disease of the genital organs, caused by the scret habits of youth. Price ten dollars by mail or express.

A CURE WARRANTED.

Dr. Amos & Son have devoted their attention exclusively to this peculiar class of maiadies, and the relief they have consequently been enabled to render their fellow questures, is fully testified and gratefully acknowledged by convalescent patients and others daily arriving in town from all parts of the country for the express purpose only of consultations, while their exertions have been crowned with the most signal advantages; yet from what they have experienced in inquiring into the causes of these infectious complaints, (from their most simple condition to that of the most dangerous and inveterate) they have always entertained the possibility of their prevention and removal, and likewise invariably found that the most horrible and malignant forms of disease could almost invariably be traced to one of the following causes: Ignorance, neglect or the ill effects of unskillful and improper treatment; therefore, Dr. Amos & Son have succeeded in discovering, in the selection of their remedies, a safe, effectual and cautious course; omitting all combination of remedies which bear an equivocal character, as well as those whose premature or injudicious application might be productive of bad consequences in the hands of private individuals. In short the laudable end of their remedies is the leasening of a great mass of human misery by the alleviation, relief and prevention of those grievous afflictions that are inreality the secret foces of life, and which, while they so extensively surround us, call aloud for our skill and interference for their extermination.

Machine. Machine.

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1857.

DECEIVED FIRST PREMIUM AT the Indiana and Iowa State Fairs, 1858. This Machine has advantages over all others now in operation: 1st. Its size being only two and one-half feet square, and is built of Iron, and weighing but four hundred and fifty pounds, rendering it a perfect Portable Machine.

2d. It being a Self-Feeder, the bolt or block being placed into the Machine, travels down by its own weight, until it is entirely cut up, rendering it perfectly safe to the operator.

3d. It requires but very little power to operate it, one man only being required to cut the hardest kind of Oak or Walnut at the rate of 5,000 per hour; therefore it is a perfect hand machine, and being portable can be taken into the woods and be made to pay for itself in less than into the wooth and to be last of the hirty days.

It is also adapted to any other power, (portable engines in particular) requiring only the belt by which its capacity is unlimited, being capable of cutting 75,000 Merchantable Shingles per day, with asse.

The Machine may be seen in operation at all times a This Machine may be seen in operation at all times at the Patent Right Emporium, No. 12 South Pennsylvania Street, Indianapolis.

75,000 Lath Per Day. J. L. BROWN'S IMPROVED SELF-FREDING Lath Machine.

PATENTED PERRUARY 8, 1859.

PROVEMENT on the one known as J. L. Brown's Mammoth Lath Machine, Patented January 15, 1856, for the following reasons:

1st. The position in which the belt is placed into the Machine being at an angle of forty-five degress, which obviates the necessity of changing anything for different lengths and thicknesses of the bolt.

2d. The arrangement of the rests for governing the thickness of the Lath by which they travel faster than the thickness of the Lath by which they travel faster than the thickness of the Lath drops perfectly free before the return of the rests, which prevents anything from catching, and every Lath is bound to be perfect and of even thickness. (This is the cause of a great waste of timber with the Mammoth Machine by catching and cutting a great many imperfect Lath, not that I am disposed to underrate the Mammoth, for I know it is a very years experience in manufacturing and operating them, it has enabled me to present to the public a Machine.

3d. The knife has a downward and drawing stroke, so that the power required to operate it is less than one-half of that of the Mammoth, and can be operated by hand with case, which is finpossible with the Mammoth or any other machine.

4th. The cost is much less, which is a decided advantage to purchasers of machines or territory.

Mace's Portable Gas Generator

Manufactures from common

Burning fluid the cheapest, cleanest, safest, most convenient and most brilliant Gas Light ever-offered to the public. Every Shop, Store, Dwelling, Hall, Church and Railroad Car, can now enjoy the luxury of a brilliant Gas Light at a trifling cost, without the necessity of introducing pipes throughout the building.

Each burner is, when lighted, a complete Gas Manufactory, enabling any one at all times to suit their own convenience in its position. The great power and sofures of the light is unequaled. It never irritates or tires the eye, is entirely free from all smoke, soot or odor. It is used without a wick, and hence requires no trimming, is very easily managed, and perfectly safe under all circumstances, and must be seen to be appreciated.

Hamilton's Burglar Proof Lock. THE GREATEST IMPROVEMENT

EVER MADE IN LOCKS! THE ONLY SAFE LOCK FOR HOTEL THE ONLY SAFE LOCK FOR HOTEL rooms, state-rooms, outside doors for stores and dwellings, prisons, &c. The patent was ebtained by J. J. Hamilton, of Newcastle, Indians, March 27, 1858, for double lifts and slides for the keyholes, imprevements which no other lock possesses. It is proof against burglars; and, after locked, it can not be opened from the opposite slide without destroying the lock. One thousand dollars is offered to any one who can pick the lock from the side opposite where it has been locked.

The right to sell the locks is offered to all hardware dealers in the country, and the locks furnished in quantities to sail purchasers. The Burglar Proof Lock can be sold at a small advance upon the price of ordinary locks, to which thy are in every respect superior. The locks are now being manufactured in New Britain, Conn., and Pittsburg, Penn.
